SUCCESS

Everytime I see that word I tend to overthink about it. That word makes people feel so pressured and stressed because the goal of life is to be successful. It comes with time and patience and even though I'm very young I want to know if I will be being at my top level of "success" is having a stable job that I love and winning decent money to help my mom, sisters, and myself. All I want is for my girls to be proud of my success and I wish that for them as well. However when you're on the climb to it's going to be hard because I'm pretty positive there will be many obstacles in the way and it will maybe come crashing down or you get it on your first try. Going to school for years, pre-k, kindergarten, elementary, middle, highschool and college teach us how to stay on the path to success. I hope I will be successful later in life so all the people I love would be proud of me and myself I would love to see all my hard work come into play.
